Introduction

Abū Zakariyā Yaḥyā b. Ziyād b. ʿAbdallāh b. Manzūr ad-Daylamī, called al-Farrāʾ (born in 144/761 and died in 207/822), was a prominent member of the Kūfan school of Arab linguistics and author of a series of writings in the field of Qurʾānic philology. His most significant work, written just before his death in the 810s, is usually known under the title: Maʿānī l-Qurʾān (i.e. the book of problematic places of the Qurʾān). The first page, however, calls it Tafsīr muškil iʿrāb al-Qurʾān wa-maʿānīhi. The book was first edited by a group of Egyptian scholars in Cairo (vol.I: A. Y. Nağātī & M. ʿA. an-Nağğār, 1955; vol.II: M. ʿA. an-Nağğār, 1966; vol.III: ʿA. Šalabī & ʿA. an-Nağdī, 1972).

The present volume is the first of a series of indices and concordances of the Maʿānī l-Qurʾān intended to be published in the near future. An index of the references to al-Kisāʾī in the Maʿānī has already been published (as the Appendix of Dévényi, “al-Farrāʾ and al-Kisāʾī”, The Arabist, 3-4(1991) 159-176). On the preparations of the lexical index (also to appear as a separate volume of The Arabist at a later date) and the problems arising during the work, see Dévényi, “Lexical index to al-Farrāʾ’ s Maʿānī l-Qurʾān” to be presented at the Colloquium of Arabic Lexicography and Lexicology (Budapest 1-7 September 1993), which will be published in the Proceedings of the conference in 1994: The Arabist 6-7. An annotated index of the qurrā' mentioned in the Ma'ānī l-Qur'ān is to appear in The Arabist 8 (1994). Last but not least, a thematic index of the topics (linguistic and others) treated in the book will also be prepared.

All the indices have been prepared on computer. The whole text of the Cairo edition, containing 1207 pages and more than a quarter of a million words in three volumes, was typed in and then analyzed by OCP (Oxford Concordance Program). The bulk of the work was done when I spent 13 months in Oxford during 1988-89 on a scholarship granted by the Soros Foundation. I owe special thanks to Alan Jones who supervised my research in Oxford and helped me in every possible way. He introduced me into the realm of using OCP and assisted me to overcome the difficulties and solving my problems (there were a great many).

On the index of Qur'ānic references

The Cairo edition does not contain a useful index of Qur'ānic references. Vols.I. and III. are equipped with a table of contents, but vol.II. is not. But even these tables of contents cannot be regarded as reference-indexes because they do not contain reference to a verse mentioned not in its proper place but within the explanation of another verse. Our index is a complete reference-index of the Qur'ānic verses occurring in the book. Its only deficiency is that it does not differentiate between reference to a complete verse and reference to only a part of the verse.

On the organisation of the index

At the head of every chapter, following the name of the sūra as used by the Cairo edition (based on “Ḥafs ‘an ‘Āṣim”) there may come in parentheses other name(s) of the sūra used by al-Farrā’ either in the title or elsewhere in the chapter. Below it, in square brackets the total number of the āyas in the sūra is written. Then, in the third line it is shown in parentheses where al-Farrā’ treats the sūra in question in his book.

On every page the following entries are listed: number of the Qur’ānic verse, and after the colons the number of the volume, page and line of its occurrence in the book. The sign S. means that on the relevant place the whole sūra is cited or referred to not just one verse.

As is known, al-Farrā’s work aims mainly at the linguistic analysis of the Qur’ānic text. The author proceeds according to the order of the Holy Book, but he does not treat every āya, skipping those which according to his opinion does not need explanation. On the other hand, in speaking about an āya he often refers to other Qur’ānic verses that bear relevance to the given question — even to verses not dealt with in their proper places. These (secondary) occurrences are marked in our index by a star. After it the numbers of the sūra and verse (in connection of which a given verse is mentioned) come in square brackets. The author generally does not quote whole verses but only those parts which seem interesting to him in the given context, therefore if another part of the same āya is referred to during the explanation it is considered as a secondary occurrence (marked with a star) and the number of the same verse is mentioned after it in square brackets.

It is to be noted that the bismillāh form is listed only once, in Sūrat al-Fātiḥa, its other occurrences, at the beginning of Qur'ānic chapters, are omitted from our index.

An example of how to interpret our notation:

i. al-Fātiḥa (al-Ḥamd) [7]
(I,1.15 – I,8.14)

Here the ordinary name of the first sūra is followed by a special name used by al-Farrā' and then by the number of verses in the sūra. Below in parentheses the location of the sūra in the edition (volume, page, line) can be found.

1.: I,1.17; *II,91.14 [xv.87]

S.: *II,91.11 [xv.87]

That means that the first āya is explained in vol.I, on page 1, line 17, but also referred to in vol.II, p.91, l.14, where the 87. verse of the xv. sūra is explained. In the second line we find that in vol.II, page 91, line 11 (in connection with the explanation of the same verse) the whole first sūra is also referred to.

ii. al-Baqara [286]
(I,9.1 – I,189.7)

26.: I,20.7; I,23.12; *I,23.14 [ii.26]

Here we find an example for a reference to a (part of a) verse within the explanation of (another part of) the same verse.
